Data storage provider ProStor Systems and Salumatics form strategic partnership for Canada

Mississauga, ON (November 24, 2010) – Salumatics Inc. and ProStor Systems today announce a strategic partnership agreement in which Salumatics will be a reseller of ProStor Systems' digital information storage solution in Canada. As part of this agreement, Salumatics will resell the ProStor InfiniVault[®], which is delivered as an integrated storage system, and attaches to any existing client network.

ProStor InfiniVault is a scalable, secure, and affordable storage solution for long-term retention of records and images. It provides the performance and accessibility of disk-based archives, with the cost and scalability of traditional tape or optical alternatives. ProStor InfiniVault manages digital records or DICOM (Digital Imaging and Communications in Medicine) objects over the client's existing network and can retrieve them on request. Organizations benefit from simplified data management, and flexible retention and disposition rules to meet any legal or compliance requirement. The ProStor InfiniVault is the only storage system designed to balance the needs of managing increasing amounts of information over extended periods of time.

According to Allan Magnacca, President and CEO of Salumatics, "We're very pleased to announce this business relationship with ProStor Systems. Salumatics will leverage our local presence and industry expertise to market the hardware, implementation, and support services to Canadian customers. We are adding this technology to our already robust health information management services offerings of document conversion, remote coding, and data hosting. This will assist organizations in any industry with their end-to-end records needs, from conversion of paper records to the long-term retention of scanned data and digital images."

Says Ian Duncan, VP of Marketing and Strategy of ProStor Systems, "Salumatics is a natural fit with ProStor's technical and business value propositions. They have a strong local presence in Canada and long term engagements with many healthcare organizations for its other services. Salumatics and ProStor will be providing a unique, cost-effective solution in this important marketplace for managing information and data retention."
